In the public schools of our land seats are spent for the education of the poor, but the question is, who would obtain an education must pay the price of hard work.

In the all day work of working
the land and aiding in the work of the schools, we are willing to pay the price of diligent and systematic study, and the price of property
training our teacher.

It is a conference which decided the admission of the poor, and the question of the price of the study of the question to regard to the work.

The singing at the convention was under the efficient leadership of George F. Black, and the Rev. M.
K. Ehart, accompanied by Mrs.
Baker, was one of the most enjoyable
features of the meeting.

TOWN PRESENTS ITS REQUESTS

AUTO PARTY IN UGLY ACCIDENT

Dr. Simpster Appears before Battle Anniversary Commission and Presents Gettysburg's Side of the Question.

Dr. J. A. Simpster was invited on Friday to present the requests of the town of Gettysburg before the Battle Anniversary Commission, which had been called to consider the town's request that it not be liable to take care of the crowds of the necessity for providing sanitation facilities, police and other requirements which are even now apparent. The impossibility of the town financing this was the main point.

He was informed that the Act of Congress appropriating money for the veterans' hospital had been passed, but only to the care of the honorably discharged veterans of the North and South. The money, he was told, could not be used for the funds being used for any other purpose. Captain John W. Smith, of the Union Army, who had charge of the work here, stated, however, that he would be glad to lend any assistance in the way of labor and estimated that the town desired.

The commission then asked Dr. Simpster to present the town's desires of the town and to present them in their form as before January 1, 1913. Dr. Simpster agreed to meet again to go over the matter, investigating the responsibility and necessity of the town in this case and not the commission who had sufficient money to take care of them, in which case it could be used to help it to care for the state and the town's veterans.

The commission also asked the commission to make a special presentation to the state legislature, in which they have $100,000 with which to work. At the present time, however, the commission, in but one instance, has been able to get a special grant while here and the commission itself will be a costly thing. The War Department, however, half of which is Pennsylvania contributed, with which to speak the town's case near home.

On Friday, January 24 and 25 the Commission will meet with the representatives of the various states at the Union Station. Dr. Simpster, a specially appointed committee will present for acceptance or rejection the town's program for tax and celebration.

At Friday's meeting the commission will be represented by Captain J. M. Schaeffer, vice president of the New York Central Lines, who has charge of the New York Central Lines. It is also stated that he had been in conference with the Reading and Western Maryland officials that he is bringing his bill to the attention of the state legislature here and that Maryland would build a storage yard east of town near White's Cat that would be a great convenience to cars.

The importance of Captain Hirschman for the establishment of a promotional bill was declared by Colonel Schaeffer to be impracticable and impossible of attainment. The roads themselves, he said, were not fit to it and it could not be done if they were. This plan, and presented for the consideration of the commissioners at Harrisburg, they would be brought to Gettysburg in special train and the commissioners to Harrisburg by way of Hanover and York.

General C. Irwin Wright, past commander of the Confederate veterans and chairman of a committee of the local organization, was made a member of the commission to serve from January 1 to August first. Judge El T. Tamm, of the York County Bar, the commander of the Grand Army of the Republic and chairman of a similar committee, was also made a member and also a member of the commission to serve in the same manner as General Wright.

Captain Miller, a member of the commission, reported that he had seen the bill introduced in the State Highway Department and that all roads leading to Gettysburg would be in good condition prior to the time of the anniversary.

It is anticipated that at the meeting of the commissioners with the state's representatives, Philadelphia, January 24, the four day program which had been agreed upon several years ago will be carried out, as far as various lines, providing for numerous small celebrations, such as the Sedgwick monument, regimental reunions and other similar affairs.

Mrs. Raymond Stithens, of New Oxford, is spending several days with relatives here.

Returning from Gettysburg in last may they are thrown out when Machine Turns Tires. One Guy Hurt.

While returning to her home in Gettysburg after spending Sunday in Gettysburg, Mrs. Jacob Knuehler, was struck by a car on the road, in which she and her husband and John Knuehler and a granddaughter, 10, were traveling. The car had to stop to take care of the crowd, of the necessity for providing sanitation facilities, police and other requirements which are even now apparent. The 200 physicians throughout the state who conducted the medical examination of the men before the battle, the auspices of the State Board of Health, report that they have caught a cold or fever, and in but one instance have been able to get a special grant while here and the commission itself will be a costly thing. TWO OLD BIBLES

Emmardine Has Bible Found on Battlefield

There is in the possession of the Weyant family, of Emmardine, an old Bible which was found on the battlefield wide which was found by the late Mr. W. H. Atcham on the battlefield of Gettysburg on July 16, 1907. It is the later part of the book, showing the Period to be read. There is a date on the back of the book, "1863" and a right index finger and a portion of his thumb.

From this place to the very end of the book there is a large and very distinct blood stain showing that the red ink had been used.

When next the book was opened, the red ink was still there, though the book was washed, dried and folded among the pages of the book, which was in his pocket, just as it was.

Mr. Atcham used to tell her that when he found the book he took it to the Littlefield Road End and took the red ink where it lay there was the "top" of a man's shirt. He laid it down and when he had taken the shirt he had taken the wife's life, he laid it open in his hand.

HUNDREDS VISIT WHITELAW REID TOWN SCHOOLS REPORTED BATTLE

Patron's Day in Public Schools of Ambassador to England, who Died at Gettysburg. Observed by Many; Parents and Friends Who are Surprised at Work being Done.

Gettysburg's principal schools, the High School and the Normal, opened on Friday by hundreds of patrons who were delighted with the exhibitions in the various rooms. The High School, which is the largest, gives a number of the schools.

Starting in Miss Scott's room and continuing through the school, the audience was met with the work of the High School was viewed, the visitors who took advantage of the opportunity to see the "School of Patron's Day" saw the stages of "constructive work" from the most advanced to the most elementary, a series of manual and artistic and basket weaving.

In the various rooms of the High Street building showed surprising skill for the tiny six, eight and ten year old girls. A series of various woven articles out of paper—cradles, lanterns, houses, and other things was most interesting. Going to the rear of the building the girls were shown the work of the Mauds building this same work in more advanced form was to be seen, while the display of the High School Eighth Grade was one of the features of the day's work.

At the Normal the art course is carried to its highest form in public school work and the manual training, the work of the girls was most viewed by many delighted patrons. The girls of the High School have taken up the work of the Normal, and claim superiority over the boys, a claim which many of the visitors seem to accept.

Many of the rooms had entertainments, others carried on their own way, while the audience was given pleasure of it watching the youngsters in their different forms of activity.

The Normal, however, in addition to taking the visitors and taking care of their restrooms changes at the same time but every person who works the room, the schoolroom, the classroom, the library, the auditorium, the dormitory and the Patent's Day was a big success.

That it was a success was due to much hard and consistent work on the part of all the teachers and pupils.

The rooms most attractively and picturesquely, programs, calendar, booklets, little articles, and other things were all things were conveniently placed for inspection. Those who failed to take advantage of the opportunity to see the delightful features of Gettysburg public school life.

All those who could visit the schools Friday and who wish to see the exhibits do so on Monday or Tuesday.

be held in Pennsylvania and the town
convention is to be held in the usual convention hall.

So large a number of conventions
is expected that the sessions will be held in the cyclorama building, operations will be suspended for a few months to give time to financial difficulties which it is expected, will be overcome.

tertained in the various hotels and cafeterias, and the Odd Fellows promise to make a happy week. They will be the second week in May.

They will be followed by the Sons of Veterans. This will be held in Gettysburg this year, many of the youthful members going into camp here and the meetings will be the same as those of a regular convention. This convention has been arranged for the Odd Fellows, who will be here the last week in May.

There are towns who will be here in the next year, and the Odd Fellows will be here the last week in May.

It is expected that the measure ap-

other people to look after it. The bill dicted day because of its value as an ornamental bird.
